2nd Air Raid Test Friday

The second in a series of statewide test air raid alerts has been scheduled for Friday, Feb. 13.

State Civil Defense and Public Safety Director Spaulding Bisbee said that the Friday exercise, testing the air raid warning communications network, will be held between 1:30 and 2:00 p. m.

Air Raid Sirens and other public warning devices will be sounded on the "All Clear"—near 2:00 p. m., but the public will not be required to take any action. This is not a public participation test.

State CD officials and observers were highly pleased with the overall results of the first test on January 16th, despite some "bugs" which developed at certain relay points.

Purpose of this test, according to General Bisbee, is to improve the efficiency with which the public can be alerted in event of impending air attack.

Amateur radio operators with mobile equipment will be dispatched to principal cities in the state to report to the State Control Center in Augusta the results of the public alarm systems on the "White Alert"—or "All Clear."

NORWAY-RUMFORD 4-HERS TOPS IN DEMONSTRATION TOURNAMENT AT S. PARIS

At the final demonstration tournament, held at the South Paris Grange Hall Friday evening, Feb. 6, 13 clubs each gave a demonstration and four demonstration teams were chosen winners by the judges: a junior boys' team, a junior girls' team, senior boys' team, and a senior girls' team. These 4-H boys and girls receive, as their award for winning, a trip to State 4-H Day in Orono, June 26.

The winning demonstrations were as follows: Table Setting (junior demonstration), Patricia Boyce and Margaret Bachelder, "Chickadees," Norway Center; How to Plant a Spruce Tree (junior demonstration), Steve Brown and Wayne Thurston, "Whizzers," Norway Center; How to Remodel a Feed Hopper (senior demonstration), Ira Pridle and Kenneth Crab, "Hoping 4-H," Norway; Making a Crazy Cake (senior demonstration), Heidi Howard, Rumford Center; "Wonder Workers," Rumford.

Judging the demonstrations were Mrs. Frank W. Hagan, Norway; Mrs. Glenn Starbird, South Paris; Benjamin A. Curtis, Norway.

During the time the judges were considering the winners, Ernest Mabury, of the South Paris Grange, gave a reading, and Miss Helen Britton, of the South Paris Elm Hill Hustlers 4-H Club, gave piano, accordion, and harmonica selections.

Mrs. Rose Robinson, leader of the Hungry Hollow 4-H Club, South Paris, was in charge of the meeting.

GIRL SCOUTS
Patrol No. 1 met at June Greig's Feb. 11. The chairman, Mary Head, called the meeting to order and the secretary gave the report. After that we rehearsed the two plays, The Happy Family and The Prince's May Party. The children acting in The Happy Family acted as audience for The Prince's May Party and the Prince's May Party kids were audience for The Happy Family. These plays will be presented at a meeting of the Bethel Players—respectfully submitted, Anne C. Brown, secretary.

CLYDE L. WHITMAN

Clyde L. Whitman died at his home on Grover Hill Sunday after a long illness.

He was born at Bethel, July 6, 1885, the son of Albert and Frances Blake Whitman. He was educated here and attended Gould Academy. In 1907 he married Effie Tyler of Mason.

Survivors include his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Rogers, of South Waterford; two sons, Winfield, Bartlett, N. H., and Arthur, Hartford, Conn., and two grandsons.

Funeral services were held at the Greenleaf funeral home Tuesday afternoon at 1:30. Rev. David Hickland officiated. Interment was at Pine Grove Cemetery, West Bethel.

TO CLYDE L. WHITMAN: A TRIBUTE

During the past four weeks friends and neighbors of Clyde Whitman have anxiously shared with him and his family the courageous struggle for life against increasing odds. His death on Sunday evening, Feb. 8, brought genuine sorrow to many who will long cherish his memory.

Although for several years failing health had compelled Clyde to remain close by his own hearthside, he was ever the genial host, hospitably greeting callers and visitors. His droll wit, his clever gift of mimicry, his talent for presenting dramatic situations, made him a fascinating teller of tales of yesteryear which captivated his listeners, old and young alike.

The out-of-doors held a special lure for him. He found pleasure in cutting an adequate winter's supply of firewood; he discovered peace and contentment in his garden which in fair weather and foul always produced bountiful crops.

He was a wide reader and had favorite radio commentators to whom he listened regularly so that he was well-informed on local and world affairs.

It was on a June day in 1907 when Clyde Whitman and Miss Effie Tyler of Mason were married. Their first home on Grover Hill was the only one in which they ever lived.

There was in every way an ideally happy marriage with mutual devotion and understanding. They were blessed with a daughter and two sons who, after they had established homes of their own, returned often to their parents' home. With them came the grandchildren who brought delight to a proud and affectionate grandfather.

The following quotation by Robert Louis Stevenson seems peculiarly appropriate:
"His was, indeed, a good influence in life while he was still among us; he had a hearty laugh; it did you good to see him; and however sad he may have been at heart, he had a cheerful countenance and took fortune's worst as it were the showers of spring."

Miss Ruth Donahue of Boston and Alan Myette of Newton Center, Mass., were week-end guests at Miss Donahue's home.

Mrs. Consuelo Alger returned this week from a visit with her son, Col. J. D. Alger and Mrs. Alger in Washington, D. C.

The Parish Supper of the Bethel Methodist Church will be Thursday, Feb. 19. All members and friends of the Church are cordially invited.

INDUSTRY HAS A HEART

In an experience of many years which has been spread across the nation, I've become intimately acquainted with many leading American industrialists; and have been delighted to find that the large percentage of them are men of strong Christian character. The Communists and their fellow-travelers, in their frenzied efforts to antagonize employees against employers, constantly berate our industrialists as men without social consciousness, and without regard for the welfare of the workers. This is done for the evident purpose of slowing American production.

During Freedom Forum XIII at Harding College, F. Gase Chance, President of the A. B. Chance Company and a vocal, influential member of the National Association of Manufacturers, shared the platform with the President of the Central plant's IRE-CIO local. The 104 conferees of the forum, representing a national cross-section of business, organized labor, the church and education, liked what they heard from both the industrialist and the labor leader. The thinking and attitude of Mr. Chance are, I think, fairly typical of the thinking and attitude of most American industrialists today.

A Man's Wants
"Perhaps the best place for me to start," he told the forum, "is with myself to tell you something about my thinking, my wants, my ideals, and my ambitions. I want a good home for my wife and two boys. I want them to enjoy the feeling of security that is woven about a secure home. I want my family to have good health and a good sound education backed by a firm belief in Almighty God. Most of all, I want freedom for them, an opportunity to work, to worship, to study, to listen, to speak, to grow, to develop, to own, to receive, and to leave a heritage."

"Naturally I want to be a success. By success I mean the accomplishment of my objective. My overall objective is to leave this world better than I found it. I believe this requires rendering service to others. This, of course, leads to a number of outside activities besides company business. I feel that each of us has an obligation to the community, state, country, and world.

Serving All
"Our obligations and our responsibilities must grow as we grow. The president or manager of a business these days is standing on a four-legged stool, the legs represented by customers, employees, stockholders, and the public. For our customers I want us to produce a better product than our competitors, or one as good at a lower price.

"For employees, I want the same things that I want for myself and my family. For them, I want our company to progress and grow, so those who want to put forth extra effort may have more opportunities for better jobs and building of their personal security. This, I think, is one of the deepest satisfactions I can have. I want to provide an atmosphere in which people will learn to grow, thereby achieving better things for themselves and the company.

The "Enterprisers"
"For the stockholders who invest their money so that we may have tools with which to produce, I want us to earn enough to pay them adequate dividends for the use of their money. They are the enterprisers. I want our company always to be in good sound condition and a safe firm in which to invest. In the community, I want our company, and the people who work for the company, to be leaders and carry their share of the load in building a better town. I want us to be good neighbors and a positive force in setting an example of a typical American business in a free competitive society.

"In human relations, my ideal would be to have our overall relationship, and our incentives constructed that every employee would feel that he was working for himself just as though he were in business for himself. . . . All

Ideas from other editors

From The Dawson Springs Progress, Dawson Springs, Kentucky: Our hope and prayer is that when the New Year of 1954 arrives we may write about the Korean War in the past tense.

From The Tribune, Princeton, Oregon: Economy starts at home. What avail are the demands of the public for economy in federal government if we don't start with economy in our local, city, county and state spending. The public is too prone to want something for nothing, just as long as its some form of governmental agency that pays the bill, whether it be city, county, state or national, and then sit back on their heels and wait long and loud when the tax bill comes around.

The time has surely come when the demands of any special group seeking expenditures of public funds for betterment of a small segment of the populace of a city, or state, should be given careful study.

From The Talladega Daily Home, Talladega, Alabama: Once upon a time there was a whole week in which no financial drive of any sort was underway.

But that was back in 1910 and very few now living remember it.

From The Portland Press-Herald, Portland, Maine: Some 2,600,000 civilians new work for Uncle Sam.

or about 4.2 per cent of all Americans at work.

From The Ansonia Sentinel, Ansonia, Connecticut: The federal debt now totals $280,000,000,000, which means the average federal mortgage on each family is $5,800, in addition to state and local debt mortgages.

From The Littleton Courier, Littleton, New Hampshire: A man who owns a share of stock in a man who has both faith and a direct personal interest in maintaining and strengthening the free enterprise system.

From The Newark Courier-Gazette, Newark, N. Y.: A new pilot has taken over the helm of our Ship of State. General Eisenhower has pledged himself to eliminate waste, inefficiency, and duplication of service, to fight inflation, to restore integrity and competence in the management of our affairs, and to support equality of opportunity for all Americans.

A huge majority of our citizens endorsed this program and voted for "Pilot Ike" as the man to steer our Ship of State through the perilous seas that beset us. With the free world so largely dependent on America's freedom and power, once again we may say:

"Sail on, O Ship of State! Humility with all its fears, With all the hopes of future years, Is hanging breathless on thy fate!"

Letting Administration which was the dominant agency in the department. The action leaves an unbroken line of major importance. What will the new administration do about the system of former communications that was established to help administer farm programs?

Observers paid particular note to that part of Benson's announcement that said he expected employees of the department to give a full "day's work for a day's pay."

Two men, much in the news, opened offices at President Eisenhower and his cabinet took over the control of the federal government. One was private citizen Harry Truman who opened an office in Kansas City. He quipped that he felt like a country boy in the big city and added he had plenty of work to do, but did not indicate its nature.

The other was Adlai E. Stevenson who opened an office in Chicago. He too is now private citizen. His activities will include completing a book now in process, a journey to the Far East and Middle East, and last but not least the role of "constructive opposition" to the Eisenhower administration.

Charles E. Wilson made the biggest financial sacrifice in the nation's history to become a public servant. By selling his General Motors stock he will pay between $250,000 and $300,000 in capital-gains taxes. In addition he will sell 1,800 shares of G. M. stock which he would receive during the next three years as part of his retirement bonus. Besides the capital-gains taxes Wilson will lose thousands of dollars in income that his stock was earning.

To keep in touch with what's going on in rural Maine, many people read the annual report of the Maine Extension Service of the University of Maine. It's Extension Bulletin 423, "Extension Serves Maine People."

Rural Maine is well prepared to feed large groups in emergencies. About 425 women's Extension Association groups have been trained to serve well-balanced, streamlined, cafeteria-style meals to large groups.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

Shortly after the Eisenhower inauguration Walter Lippmann wrote a column which was based on an unusual and provocative idea. He pointed out that the principles the new President laid down in the inaugural address are virtually noncontroversial nowadays—whereas, not long ago as history runs, they would have been burning issues.

Mr. Lippmann went on to discuss the tremendous changes that have taken place in American attitudes and the tenor of American thinking toward the world at large since 1914. Then he wrote: "The great good that can come of it rests on the prodigious fact that for all practical political purposes there are no ideological divisions within this nation. There is conflict and diversity of economic interests; there are racial tensions and sectarian differences. But there is no alignment of large masses in an irreconcilable struggle. The conflict abroad . . . is not a conflict within the American nation. We are not now afflicted as are so many lands because this external conflict is at the same time a deep and wide internal conflict. We face many dangers but that, the greatest of them all, does not confront us now. Integral division is not the condition of America."

Proof of Mr. Lippmann's thesis is found in the reception that has been given President Eisenhower's statements and speeches, both before and after he took the oath of office. With very few exceptions, newspapers and commentators of leaders of both parties, along with widely varying political positions, have had relatively little criticism and much praise for what he stands for. And this is true of the lieutenants he has appointed. The feeling is general that this will be a dedicated Administration, that its inevitable mistakes will be honest mistakes, that politics will be sublimated to the greatest possible degree in the handling of the major problems, that the general welfare will always be placed first, and that the overriding goal will be the attainment of national unity and purpose to an extent that has not been known in many years.

The tremendous enthusiasm for Eisenhower and belief in Eisenhower that the public has shown creates a big problem in itself. That problem is that we may expect too much too fast.

Even a boiled down list of the most pressing issues that the El-senhower Administration faces shows how dangerous and foolish overoptimism would be. U. S. News & World Report listed a number in its issue of January 23. They include the Korean War; the bad condition of the European army; the ominous Communist advances in Indo-China; the Kremlin's continued gains in many parts of the world; the tremendous demand for cuts in government spending and ultimately, tax reduction; the draft, which is cutting deeper and deeper into our youthful male population and may soon seek to induct fathers. Any one of such problems is big enough and tough enough to demand the attention of the best brains the Administration can command; together, they create incredible difficulties.

President Eisenhower has taken over the toughest job on earth. His chief assistants have jobs which are not much easier. It is essential that the American people, despite their natural desire for peace and plenty, realize this and be tolerant and cooperative.

NEW ENGLAND BUILDING CLIMBS 12 PER CENT IN 1952

Total of 1952 construction contracts in New England climbed six per cent ahead of the corresponding 12-month period in 1951. Carnegie's Construction News, daily New England building report said today.

The 1952 total was $1,029,097,712.22 compared to $1,044,212,015 in 1951. This is the third year that New England construction has exceeded a billion dollars.

Five of the six states showed gains for the 12 month period. Maine was the only state with a drop, off 17 per cent. Biggest jump was by New Hampshire, 18 per cent more than the previous year. Connecticut gained nine per cent, Rhode Island nine per cent, Vermont eight per cent, and Massachusetts seven per cent.

Construction in 1953 will remain at its present high level, Carnegie's forecasted.

There is a backlog of 3.5 billions of dollars in this region of contemplated construction. This total has grown steadily in the past three years despite the huge volume of the building which has been actually undertaken, Carnegie's said.

There is still a huge need for schools, hospitals and roads, projects which must be built to meet the expanding growth of our region.

Although the urgent need for homes has been filled, the dollar volume in this activity will be large as bigger dwellings will be constructed. Also, smart design and innovations such as air-conditioning in homes will create a continued demand for new houses.

In New England an important phase of its construction economy is alterations and improvements to existing buildings. This accounts for 20 per cent of New England building dollar, and prosperous economy insures the continuance of this remodeling segment of the building industry.

"The managers of American industry must demonstrate, day by day, that they share the yearning of all Americans for peace in the world, larger and better opportunities, and for higher and ever-higher living standards, according to Wm J. Grede, president of Grede Foundries, Inc., Milwaukee, Wis.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

SOME SIX YEARS ago Irving Lelbovitch, 5180 Victoria, Montreal, Canada, gathered his life savings and went into business for himself. Three short years later, he discovered that the business had eaten up his entire investment, his life's savings, every last cent he had. He was bitterly discouraged and disillusioned. Life had indeed become one big problem, one big worry. He had his back to the wall; he became moody and morose. And to add to his financial difficulties, his wife was just about to give birth . . . and he had all the doctor's and hospital bills to meet.

During this period of mental distress, he chanced upon a bit of philosophy on a recording by Jan Pierce which he played over and over and over. This philosophy helped him immensely during this trying period. It goes like this:

And no matter what you have don't envy those you meet.

It's all the same, it's in the game, the bitter and the sweet.

And if things don't look so cheerful, just show a little fight. For every bit of darkness, there's a little bit of light.

These simple lines helped him ride over the rough spots. It was like a salve to an open wound. It made him realize that life was no abyss, that, somewhere, somehow, there is a blue bird of happiness.

"EASY DOES IT"

It's easy to glamorize your vegetables if you'll follow a few simple cooking tricks with the common types that you serve often. Give them a new place in the menu with these treatments:

Chopped, cooked spinach is a wonderful dish when you place it in a casserole, cover with cream sauce and top with mushroom caps fried in moderate oven just long enough to heat through.

Glazed onions look beautiful around a roast, as a garnish and as a vegetable. Mix 4 tablespoons melted butter, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and 1/2 cup honey and cover cooked whole onions with this. Spoon over as you heat them through just to glaze them.

Pears will have that really distinctive garden flavor if you add some chopped mint or parsley or both during the last few minutes of cooking time.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Spiced Tongue Slices

(Serves 8)

- 1 beef tongue
- 2 tablespoons salt
- Water to cover
- 3 pieces celery
- 12 whole cloves
- 2 bay leaves
- 12 whole peppercorns
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups vinegar
- 2 cups water
- 8 small onions, thinly sliced

Wash tongue and cover with salted water. Add celery and spices. Cook slowly until tender, about an hour per pound. Skin and slice. Cook sugar, vinegar and 2 cups water for 10 minutes. Pour over tongue. Add onions. Store in cool place and use as desired.

Several small servings of left-over vegetables can be combined with a cheese sauce and served in hollowed-out, cooked onions for a special treat.

Cooked parsnips are really delicious when topped with melted butter, brown sugar and mustard. Bake to heat through.

National Heart Fund Drive Aided by Business Leaders

Representative leaders of the nation's business and industry have strongly endorsed the Heart Fund campaign being conducted during the month of February by the American Heart Association and its affiliates. It has been disclosed by Bruce Barton, prominent advertising agency executive and a Vice-President of the American Heart Association.

Mr. Barton declared that, "Today, business men realize that their greatest assets are not their plants, their patents or the stock on their shelves. Their greatest assets are their own lives and the lives of the men who help make the plans and execute the decisions."

"As they see it," Mr. Barton said, "everything that protects those lives is an investment in the success and future of their business. I have asked the heads of several companies to express in their own words why they believe that the Heart Fund has a unique claim upon American business."

Among those expressing their approval of the Heart Fund was A. W.

Robertson, of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, who wrote, "During four years as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Heart Association, I have been impressed with the number of significant and promising developments in the treatment of heart disease."

"Through research," Mr. Robertson continued, "a better day for potential heart victims is in sight. Business men may be sure that their support will help greatly to continue and expand the attack against this leading enemy of health."

Charles E. Wilson, President, General Motors Corporation, declared, "I have seen heart disease at work. In industry we are vitally affected by the fact that diseases of the heart and circulatory system currently cause more than one out of every two deaths and take a significant toll in a person's most productive years between the ages of 25 and 60.

"I doubt that there is a health problem of more immediate importance to industry, and I feel that for that reason the fight against heart disease deserves the fullest financial support."

Winthrop W. Aldrich, Chairman, Chase National Bank, gave his endorsement of the Heart Fund in the following words: "No section of the community is better qualified to assume leadership in connection with the problem of reducing the impact of heart and circulatory diseases than that of the American business."

"The support which industry can give to the program of the American Heart Association," Mr. Aldrich continued, "will undoubtedly accomplish a great deal toward the reduction of economic and human waste brought about by these ailments."

More than six times as many men of your age will die of lung cancer this year as died in 1933. Our research scientists still don't know why.

They do know, however, that over half of those who will develop lung cancer can be saved... If they get proper treatment while the disease is still in the silent, asymptomatic stage. That's why we urge you to have a chest X-ray every six months no matter how well you may feel.

BLACK CATS ARE LUCKY!

Nobody cares whether cats are black, brown, white or yellow. People treat them all the same.

Certain people aren't as lucky as cats. Their color can get them into trouble.

So can their ancestry. Or their religion. Cats don't discriminate because of such things. Many people do.

Eyestrain Is the Price People Pay for Progress

Dr. Louis J. Girard, a New York ophthalmologist, believes that the demands of our complex civilization have made us acutely aware of our eyes because "the demand for acute vision is far greater in this highly complex civilization."

"Our eyes are no worse and, in some respects, are better than those of previous generations," he wrote in an article published by Today's Health.

Eyestrain will not permanently damage the eyes, Dr. Girard points out.

"Continuing to strain the eyes when eyestrain symptoms are present can certainly aggravate the condition, but it has not been known to produce organic changes in the eyes. It is not thought that the eye is capable of straining itself into permanent damage."

As for watching television, Dr. Girard writes that it is "inconceivable that the television screen would harm the eyes of a person on the other side of the room; television contains no harmful rays."

"Watching television to excess can cause symptoms of eyestrain, but not permanent injury. If the viewer needs glasses, has anise-konis (unequal images are seen by the two eyes) or a muscle imbalance, he is even more likely to get symptoms of eyestrain. But if the eyes are normal or defects have been properly corrected, no symptoms will result from watching television."

"Knowing this, common sense should dictate the length of time anyone should spend gazing at the television screen."

Dr. Girard gives several reasons for eyestrain. The most common reason is a refractive error that calls for glasses. Undercorrected farsightedness, astigmatism, presbyopia or "old sight" and overcorrected nearsightedness may produce eyestrain symptoms. Proper glasses can correct these types.

Muscle imbalance, a disturbance in the delicate eye muscles that synchronizes the movements of both eyes, is another reason for eyestrain. Such affliction can be alleviated by proper glasses, certain eye exercises and, sometimes, by surgery.

Prolonged use of the eyes, improper illumination and a number of organic eye diseases can also cause eyestrain.

The Mailman

By Shirley Sargent

The name on the mailbox read Harold B. Johnson. The boldly painted letters were fairly new, not yet tarnished by weather. Hal Johnson, a youngish man with quick stride and confident bearing, paused there to kiss his wife goodbye before he left for work. "Be good," he said softly.

"Good!" Joan pulled away impatiently. "What else can I be? Oh, Hal, I'm so lonesome."

"I know. Why don't you go calling again? Skip your practicing for one morning."

"What's the use?" Joan's bitterness overflowed. "Two months and only one visitor! And you know what happened when I returned her call. I broke up a canasta party. That was the fastest brush-off I've ever had!"

"If I'd known this was a neighborhood of deadheads, I never would have asked you to move. I miss having friends drop in, but I don't know what we can do."

Where was the mailman? Joan wondered, stepping onto the clean-swept porch to watch for him. The piano could wait. She only practiced to kill time and loneliness.

She was glad she hadn't told Hal about the woman next door.

Joan had been hanging clothes up when the woman had come outdoors. "Good morning," Joan had called gaily.

"Hello, I've been meaning to get over to see you, but I've been so busy..." her voice trailed off.

"Oh, that's all right," Joan had said quickly, "come anytime."

"You have a knack with the piano," the woman had spoken almost grudgingly. "My boy plays."

"I've heard him," Joan had said eagerly. "Maybe I could help him."

"He gets along well enough," the woman had replied coldly and moved away. Rebuffed, Joan had walked off, hoping the woman would call her back. But she hadn't.

Now she thought of the evening ahead when the long silence, which should have been filled with news and gossip about the neighbors, would come between Hal and her.

"There is no law, human or divine that requires any man to provide a job for another, nor is there any law which requires any man to work for another. This nation was built upon the idea that the individual is free and all men are equal." — Whitman (Mass.) Times.

While breast cancer is the commonest cancer among women of your age, it is also highly curable if treated properly before it has spread beyond a local area in the breast itself. Doctors tell us that women are much more likely to be the first to discover the earliest signs of breast cancer. That is why you should know the correct and most thorough way to examine your breasts for any lumps or thickening. POST ARTICLE TELLS OF TOWN MANAGER IN AROOSTOOK COUNTY

Fred C. Greaves, a big amiable chap of fifty-two years, is town manager of Linneus, Maine, in Aroostook County. He is also constable, road commissioner, town treasurer, tax collector, excise tax agent, and overseer of the poor. His governmental duties include being town manager of the nearby towns of Hodgdon, Reed and Angley as well. His service as a public official does not stop here for Greaves holds down twenty-six governmental jobs within an area of 144 square miles here in Aroostook County, Maine.

According to an announcement released by the Maine Publicity Bureau the warmly moving documentary story of the outstanding services performed by this one man in Maine for his community is told by William S. Dutton in the current Saturday Evening Post, entitled, "This is How They Do It in Maine."

The author says, "The jobs are no sinecures. Greaves drives 25,000 miles a year in the performance of his duties, collects more than $100,000 tax monies and handles over twice that sum when state and other funds are taken into account."

The story tells how Greaves has brought the towns from virtual bankruptcy to a comfortable surplus by a practical application of a combination of hard headed and sympathetic principals of democracy.

The success of Greaves' plural activities is cited as an example of the merits of the Maine Town Manager system of Government. The Five Town State has more than a tenth of the total number of town managers in the country, being the leading state in this respect.

Fred Greaves is a director of the Maine Municipal Association and has the reputation as being "the best informed man on municipal law in Maine."

According to Fred, "Bad habits in government are like bad habits in the home, once you begin sweeping the dirt under the rug, the cleaner it becomes to keep sweeping it under the rug. Soon you think that's what the rug are for."

Arthur Dutton's article is a fine tribute to Aroostook's Fred C. Greaves and is also a tribute to the Maine town manager system of government.

In one week, a city newspaper has been getting enough government publicity to fill 800 columns. Justice H. Wood says in an article in Nation's Business.

County Extension Service offices in Maine have supplied of hundreds of free bulletins, circulars, pamphlets, and leaflets on farming and home-making and allied subjects.

GOULD 73-BRIDGTON 58

J.V.'s WIN 66-55

In two free scoring games the Gould Varsity and J.V. teams came through with victories at Bridgton last Friday. In the opener Coach Bowhay's understudies produced a one-sided victory with all the pinstriped substitutes playing most of the last half.

The varsity game was a different story during the first half. Gould however went out front 13-7 in the first period. Early in the second stanza both Murphy and Rolfe had to be taken out because of three personals on them. Emery and Rowe replaced them and played good ball although the period resulted in a 10-12 tie. Thus Gould maintained its 6 point lead with the score 29-23.

It was the third period that clinched the battle as Fossett dropped in 9 more points and Rolfe, held scoreless from the floor, came to life with 6 points to help out in a 20 point scoring spree, which gave the Huskies a 49-30 margin on which to start the final quarter.

Both teams lost three men in the fourth period. For Gould it was Murphy, Rolfe, and Melville while the home team lost Merrill, Moulton, and Thomas. The game at this point really turned in some sensational scoring as Bridgton connected for 22 points and Gould for 24.

Fossett played a whale of a game for the winners as he did a great job off the boards and led the scoring with 24 points. Rolfe had a tough job getting the range, producing only one point in the first half, but he turned loose in the final half scoring 13 more for a 14 point total. Melville came through with his biggest scoring production of the year with 12 markers. Phil Rowe up from the J.V.'s played a great part of the game and performed well as he scored eight points with some neat baskets.

For Bridgton Davis with 11 and Johns with 10 led the losers. They however were supported by eight other men who joined in the scoring.

ary to one of the State Teachers College Conference games. The J.V.'s are a strong combination having already beaten the Maine Freshmen. They will have a height advantage along with their greater experience. The Gould youngsters will have two tough games ahead of them.

The return game will be played at Gould on Tuesday. Game time is scheduled for 8 p. m. As yet no preliminary game has been scheduled.

The originally scheduled game with Gorham, N. H., for February 20 was cancelled at the request of Gorham as it will interfere with their Tourney games.

MEXICO WINS DECIDING GAME 48-38

Gould's up and down eagers had another bad night as they dropped the final game of the League to give Mexico another shot at the crown. If the Pintos beat Bridgton, they will then play-off with South Paris.

The only Husky with any drive last Tuesday was Murphy who scored 16 points in the losing cause. Rolfe and Fossett, the usual high scorers, were held to 6 and 3 points respectively.

Mexico with a new player, Philbrick, played a good brand of ball. Fraser, as usual, was high scorer, and played a cool, smart game as he flashed for 7 baskets, most of them at opportune times. Gallant and Swett, with 10 and 11 points also played well.

In the prelim, the Gould J. V. came through with another victory to the tune of 44-25.
